JCBT debates funding for Chautauqua, other festivals

BY BOB DEMAREE

The Madison Chautauqua Festival of the Arts committee went before the Jefferson County Board of Tourism (JCBT) Monday seeking $50,000 in assistance to stage that event and came away with $40,000 on a 4-2 vote.

The Chautauqua, still rebounding from a COVID-19 pandemic that canceled the event in 2020 and saw a reduction in artists in 2021, the festival asked for an infusion of cash to pump the event back up.

JCBT member Jim Bartlett, who served as one of sponsors for the request said "Chautauqua has been a mainstay of our tourism program over the years. When we drill down into it, and see what the impact it has on the local economy" it's an estimated $6 million or the most of any county event in which data is available.

Bartlett said Chautauqua fills local lodging facilities to occupancy that weekend and results in huge sales for restaurants and local shops making it the strongest economic player for tourism in Madison. "This is absolutely a solid program with a tremendous history behind it," said Bartlett, adding that "to his knowledge" the Chautauqua committee has never previously approached JCBT for funding.

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the new school year just two weeks away for Madison Consolidated and Prince of Peace schools, Madison Police have upped their training for all scenarios in which there might be an active shooter at a local school with hands-on exercises at the E.O. Muncie Junior/Senior High School building.

School safety was once again brought to the forefront with a May 24 shooting at Robb Elementary School in Uvalde, Texas, where 19 students and two teachers were fatally wounded by a gunman. But there have also been other types of shootings, such as a July 17 shooting at Greenwood Park Mall where a gunman killed three people before being killed by an armed Samaritan.

"We hope and pray to God we never need it but better safe than sorry," Madison Police Chief John Wallace, said of the training. "The department is really taking a proactive approach" especially following the shooting at Ulvade. "Prior to school year we're really wanting to really hone in on our skills."

Officer Nichole Midgett enters a classroom at E.O. Muncie School with weapon ready in an active shooter scenario drill. Madison police, using Air Soft training weapons, are conducting active shooter drills at the school this week. The school system allowed police to training at the building prior to classes starting next month.

Active shooter training is actually something Wallace said is ongoing for the Madison Police Department with other training also taking place this summer at abandoned buildings at Jefferson Proving Ground.

"This is not just a four-day or five-day event," said Wallace. "We've been working on this all summer at various times." It's training Madison Police Department has made mandatory for all of its officers and will continue on regular basis to establish a level of preparedness for "whatever threats might come" whether in a school, retail store, factory or anywhere else.

"Throughout the summer we've been really training hard on building clearances and tactical maneuvers and clearing structures" at JPG, said Wallace, "this week we moved into new dimension actually here into the schools."

"We're just running different scenarios," MPD Sgt. Shawn Scudder said of this week's drills. "Guys hiding in rooms and they've got to go find, listen for the gunshots and go find the shooter, and engage and kill the shooter

Dream rekindled for local singer

"I grew up singing everywhere I could, almost before I could talk," says Amy Ashby of Milton. "I sang at all the usual places, at church, at school, at talent shows. I did the Carrollton Idol competition and made it pretty far.

"So naturally, like every young person with some natural talent and a dream, I wanted to go to Nashville someday! But then, you know, life gets in the way. I went to college and got a job. I became a licensed Vet Tech and I work over in Louisville at Blue Pearl Veterinary as an ER and ICU tech.

"Time marches on, and Nashville became a fading image in my rearview mirror. I did sing with a few bands over the years, like Ryan Wardlow and the Outlaws, and the Dusty Roads Band. But it's been awhile since I've been on stage in front of an audience. That's why, when this singer contest at Mad Paddle came along, it was such a blast for me."

Starting back in April of this year, Jerry Wade at Mad Paddle Brewery held a Regional Singer Contest with monthly prelim rounds, leading up to a showdown final back in June. I actually signed up and competed a couple of times, and I can attest it was an absolute rush to sing in front of an appreciative crowd with an experienced band backing me up.

"My long-time friend Melissa is always pushing me to get into contests and get on stage. She believes in me, and I really appreciate that about her. Anyway, she pushed me into entering the Mad Paddle contest and I'm so glad she did. She was actually the one who dragged me to the Carrollton Idol contest, too.

"Anyway, I told Jerry I'd like to enter the contest and so he asked me to send him a video of me singing, like an audition tape. Well I don't have anything like that, so I just went out on the porch with my phone and recorded myself singing Fancy by Reba McEntire. My dog thought I was crazy, but I guess it was good enough, because Jerry put me in the contest.

"The first song I did was Tennessee Whiskey, which is a great showcase for vocal talent. I didn't win that round, but the girl who did had to drop out so I advanced.

"In the next round I did Poor Poor Pitiful Me, which I knew as a Terri

Man facing drug charges after traffic stop

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A traffic stop on the west end of downtown Madison Monday led to the arrest of a Trimble County man on drug-related charges.

Shawn Sholdebrand

Madison Police Officer Nichole Midgett observed the driver of a Dodge pickup truck make several traffic violations while driving erratically and executed a traffic stop at Main and Wall streets.

The driver was identified as Shawn P. Sholdebrand, 52, Milton, Kentucky, and an open air sniff of Sholdebrand's vehicle by Midgett's K9 partner, Cain, gave a positive indication for the presence of narcotics. A subsequent probable cause search found Sholdebrand to be in possession of methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia.

Sholdebrand was taken into custody without incident and faces preliminary charges of Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony, and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class A misdemeanor. He was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail on a $1,000 cash bond.

State Road 56 paving begins on Monday

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Indiana Department of Transportation contractor E&B Paving Inc. plans to begin asphalt resurfacing on State Road 56 in Jefferson and Scott counties beginning Monday, Aug. 1.

The $3.7 million project will take place between State Road 62 near Hanover and the north junction of State Road 3 near Blocher. Crews will be patching, milling and paving with flagging to control traffic.

All work is weather-dependent and schedules are subject to change.

Chautauqua's overall budget typically ranges from $100,000 to $125,000 but with COVID-19 the event has struggled to get to those levels. "The last couple of years has hurt everybody's financing, and that's what they're really trying to get past is the losses and results from the pandemic," said Bartlett.

The canceling the Chautauqua entirely in 2020 due to COVID-19, only 127 artists participated in 2021 — down from the more than 200 artists in 2019 — and since the Chautauqua is a free admission event to the public, most of the funding comes from booth fees the artists pay to participate.

Bartlett said the $50,000 request included $25,000 for marketing, $10,000 for hospitality and $15,000 for expenses.

Board member Trevor Crafton noted that if a $50,000 investment can provide $6 million in impact, that's the kind of investments that any business person would make, particularly as the county continues to draw all-time highs in receipts from the innkeepers tax that is dedicated to supporting tourism. Later in the meeting, Lucy Dattilo, president of Visit Madison Inc., reiterated that thought, calling it "a no brainer" based on the impact Chautauqua has on the local economy.

When a motion was finally made, it was for a $40,000 appropriation with the idea that Chautauqua could come back after this year's event to seek the additional $10,000 to use toward promoting the 2023 event.

However, when the vote was taken there was hesitation by County Commissioner David Bramer, the board president, and Curtis Chatham, the board treasurer, who ended up voting in opposition to the $40,000 allocation while Bartlett, Crafton, Ron Bateman and Wendy Lawson voted in favor.

Kara Hinze, the Chautauqua coordinator who was also involved in making the request, noted in the last year organizer have not had much of a marketing budget because they simply do not have the money. Hinze said $8,500 existed in the Chautauqua marketing budget but most of that has already been spent to target the artists who come to the festival.

"We had to make some tough calls, so we took what we have for marketing, and earmarked most of that this year for targeting artists, trying to get artists here," she said. "If we don't have quality artists, people won't want to come and shop. So, we've depleted what little we had for marketing with that" and no funds remain to promote the event to the public.

"We don't have a clear budget because right now we don't have money in our finances for a grand-scale marketing blitz for the festival." Hinze said, adding that prior to COVID-19 Chautauqua budgeted about $25,000 for marketing the event to the public.

Hinze is optimistic that this year's Chautauqua will have more artists — enough to help get the event back on track — and by Monday 128 artists have registered for the 2022 Chautauqua with the deadline next week.

"A lot of our artists have been waiting until the last minute to sign up," Hinze said, adding she has about 80 that she's is waiting on a response.

Hinze said she thinks artists are once again feeling comfortable about participating in public art shows. "Last year we had people anxious about coming back out and being in a public setting" but now the artist numbers are starting to increase at shows.

Additionally, Hinze said the Chautauqua is targeting more new artists and younger artists from all over the United States rather than just focusing on the region. "If we can increase our artist numbers that would increase our revenue," she said.

Chatham said he had issues with spending $25,000 on marketing in such a short time before the event. He wondered whether there would be sufficient time to utilize that amount of money in the next few weeks for and event set for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 24-25.

Dattilo said if marketing funding is provided, VMI would spend the next two weeks developing the marketing plan with Executive Marketing Director Sarah Prasil then executing that plan in the six weeks leading up to the Chautauqua. "They would really benefit from having a marketing plan," Dattilo noted.

Hinze said in addition to promoting this year's event, some of the funding requested would go toward establishing a better footing for the 2023 Chautauqua by being able to advertise in art magazines like the event has done in the past, but has been unable to do the last couple of years. "This would cover our immediate needs for this, but also help us to get our footing for next year," Hinze said.

Eventually, Bartlett proposed a compromise to decrease the amount in the marketing request to $15,000 with the Chautauqua returning with another request after the event to seek funding for marketing the 2023 Chautauqua. That lowered the overall request to $40,000 but includes the same amounts for hospitality and expenses.

Chatham said he would feel more comfortable in matching the $8,500 in existing Chautauqua marketing funds with another $8,500, then including funding for hospitality and expenses for a total of $33,500. Dattilo noted the amount Chatham proposed "is not a realistic marketing number" considering that some of the Chautauqua's $8,500 in marketing funds have already been spent.

Crafton said with the data showing Chautauqua is the county's biggest event draw he preferred the $40,000 amount. "It's our job to reinvest and recycle back in and continue," he said. He also requested Chautauqua to come back after this year's event to seek the additional $10,000 towards assisting with next year's marketing.

Crafton noted JCBT had previously allocated $25,000 for a new rodeo event that will take place on Chautauqua weekend. "I think it's going to kill it," he said of the expected turnout for the rodeo, adding another event that will benefit the county. He noted that he agreed to support the rodeo in its first year because it has great potential but the Chautauqua "is our seasoned veteran. Take care of your people."

Bramer said he voted against the request because he wants more "time to think about it."

In other business, Erin Kindle, coordinator of Ribberfest, provided an update on the $40,000 that JCBT had approved for Ribberfest earlier this year. Ribberfest, which is holding its 20th anniversary event, had requested $80,000, but the board approved half that with hope the City of Madison might match that amount with $40,000.

Kindle said she discussed the match with Mayor Bob Courtney earlier on Monday, and it "did not look promising" that the city will provide a match. Given that, Kindle asked JCBT to reconsider providing a portion of that amount or Ribberfest's budget will be "$17,000 in the negative."

She said Ribberfest's ticket pre-sales are currently approximately 1,800 tickets, which Bartlett said with a little less than a month until event sales are better than last year but "how much bigger is another question" for what the final ticket sales will be.

Chatham, also a member of city council, said it's "disappointing the city said 'no' to the match" because money has been appropriated for tourism that is unallocated. "It's disappointing you got nothing," he said, noting the city has $15,000 that doesn't have any commitment for the rest of the year.

Dattilo, also a member of city council, said even with city not providing the match, "the city does provide a great deal in services. They do help every event out, so it's not just a 'no' " because the city already does so much for Ribberfest through the services provided. "That has to take some weight in all of this too. Doing more will take more discussion and thought, and working together to figure that out."

Board member Ron Bateman made a motion that another $17,000 be allocated to Ribberfest because "we've got the money" so it should be used to support events that fuel tourism.

Earlier in the meeting when Chatham gave the treasurer's report, he noted that JCBT has a total fund on hand of $768,213.37, which decreased to $738,003.14 after paying claims of $25,000 to the rodeo and $5,210.23 to VMI marketing. He also said the county received $60,693.24 from the innkeepers tax in June — a record amount for that month — and that $258,138.87 has been received through the first six months of 2022, a 25.5% increase over the half-way point last year when the county reported a record $537,606.48 for the year.

The vote failed on a 3-3 tie with Bateman, Bartlett and Crafton supporting and Bramer, Chatham and Lawson opposing and seventh board member Victoria Perry unable to attend as a possible tie-breaker.

"It looks like when I vote no, that I'm against Ribberfest, I'm against Chautauqua, and that I'm anti-tourism, and I'm anti that the city didn't contribute," said Chatham, adding that both requests are coming in with little time before the events.

Bramer suggested Kindle come back to JCBT after Ribberfest and the board would revisit the request. "Give some numbers on your ticket sales and where you're at. I know we say we've got money there, but when we put together a budget" he feels like the board should stick by it. Bramer noted the board has already allocated more for partnerships than was approved in the 2022 budget. "Figure out those other numbers, give us some time to think about it," and then we can discuss further, he said.

Dattilo said Chautauqua and Ribberfest are organizations with a long history of supporting themselves in the community — Chautauqua is now in its 51st year and Ribberfest in its 20th — and "both are very fiscally responsible" with plans in place in case a catastrophic event to have the funds to continue "without missing a beat. That's what they did and they were very responsible with their money."

But then COVID-19 happened, Dattilo said, bringing a monumental impact that exceeded the ability of events that are "used to being self-sustaining and used to taking care of themselves. This is huge that Chautauqua would even come here."

Meanwhile, Ellie Troutman provided an update on the Wild West Rodeo Show that will take place at the Jefferson County 4-H Fairgrounds on Sept. 23-24 and JCBT has provided $25,000 in startup funding. Troutman is working toward getting Internet access there which she said "is a donation that the fairgrounds can utilize all year round." She said the Internet access is necessary because the Cowboy Channel will broadcast the rodeo live. "That is huge for tourism," she said.

Tayler Rinehart noted the rodeo is the first event approved by the Jefferson County Fair Board allowing alcohol to be served on fairgrounds and that all approvals are being secured for that. "Alcohol isn't the main focus, but it's part of cowboying," Troutman said.

Rinehart said there will be 60 camping sites available for outside ticket holders and there will be 12 vendors. Friday night has been designated as family night and Saturday night Veterans night. The rodeo will run from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. each night with 2,000 tickets available each performance.

"We've sold several hundred tickets so far," said Troutman.

DRILLS

... the stuff we're teaching this week is the latest and greatest in training" so that the Madison police officers are prepared.

The training is led by MPD Officer Cameron Blankenship, who received extensive active shooting training while serving in the military with his first course in 2013. He became an active shooter instructor for the Department of Defense in 2015 and received additional training at the Norse Tactical Training Centre in 2018. Blankenship joined MPD in 2019, and since then he's had the opportunity to participate in active shooting training in both 2020 and 2021, which has allowed him to continue to update on the latest and best tactics and strategies for addressing active shooter situations.

Blankenship said it's imperative that police officers be well prepared. "At the end of the day, especially us as public officials, the public has their expectation that we need to be trained and we have the right tools and right tactics to go into these situations and take care of these active threats and these active shooters," he said.

"Law enforcement just in general, and the whole tactical world, is such a quick evolving entity that it's so imperative that we as officers stay on top of what the most recent tactics are, what the safest tactics are. I am fortunate to have this military background and I am still active in my military unit to where I have these resources. It's unfortunate the civilian world, it's a slow trickle down effect. The military will establish theses practices, then they will slowly trickle down to the civilian world."

He added that Madison Police Department is "fortunate to have myself, officer (Zack) Nicholson, officer (Phillip) Wimpee, and several others that have this military experience, and we can come in and shed a new light on it, and it gives some more up-to-date tactics" to be utilized by Madison police officers.

Scudder said a lot of thanks goes to Madison Consolidated Schools for allowing Madison Police to use the E.O. Muncie building, constructed in the 1950s as an elementary school, for the training and to better simulate a school situation. "They have been very cooperative and accommodating to make this part of E.O. Muncie available to do this. I think the school (corporation) realizes the importance of this type of training."

"The basic principles that they are learning today (at E.O. Muncie) we can apply those to any type of a structure," said Scudder, who said while the space is different from a large retail store or a factory "the tactics are going to be the same. If the guys come in, they're going to move the same way, they're going to do the same stuff."

Scudder also hopes that some day Madison Police Department can have its own training facility. "It would be awesome to have a dedicated training facility," he said, noting that at "training schools we've gone to, they'll have big warehouses and they'll have movable walls where they manipulate walls, and we can change the scenarios" to create settings for various types of locations."

Wallace said active shooting training "has changed from where we were 20 years ago to today. We learned unfortunate lessons to the way officers responded in the past so we're adapting our training to the newest tactics and skills."

This week all Madison police officers have been training in two hour increments. Wallace said it's been important to focus on school situations this week as the new school year approaches.

"Our most vulnerable and No. 1 priority is our children, our No. 1 resource, so we really focus on this, but God forbid that it could happen," said Wallace, whether it's in a retail setting, a factory, school or anywhere else.

"You just don't know, and community expects that" the local police be prepared, Wallace said.

TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHTS IN HISTORY:

On July 28, 1945, the U.S. Senate ratified the United Nations Charter by a vote of 89-2. A U.S. Army bomber crashed into the 79th floor of New York's Empire State Building, killing 14 people.

ON THIS DATE:

In 1609, the English ship Sea Venture, commanded by Adm. Sir George Somers, ran ashore on Bermuda, where the passengers and crew founded a colony.

In 1914, World War I began as Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia.

In 1932, federal troops forcibly dispersed the so-called "Bonus Army" of World War I veterans who had gathered in Washington to demand payments they weren't scheduled to receive until 1945.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced the end of coffee rationing, which had limited people to one pound of coffee every five weeks since it began in Nov. 1942.

In 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson announced he was increasing the number of American troops in South Vietnam from 75,000 to 125,000 "almost immediately."

In 1976, an earthquake devastated northern China, killing at least 242,000 people, according to an official estimate.

In 1984, the Los Angeles Summer Olympics opened.

In 1995, a jury in Union, South Carolina, rejected the death penalty for Susan Smith, sentencing her to life in prison for drowning her two young sons (Smith will be eligible for parole in 2024).

In 2015, it was announced that Jonathan Pollard, the former U.S. Naval intelligence analyst who had spent nearly three decades in prison for spying for Israel, had been granted parole.

In 2016, Hillary Clinton accepted the Democratic presidential nomination at the party's convention in Philadelphia, where she cast herself as a unifier for divided times as well as an experienced leader steeled for a volatile world while aggressively challenging Republican Donald Trump's ability to lead.

In 2019, a gunman opened fire at a popular garlic festival in Gilroy, California, killing three people, including a six-year-old boy and a 13-year-old girl, and wounding 17 others before taking his own life.

In 2020, President Donald Trump issued a stout defense of the disproved use of a malaria drug, hydroxychloroquine, to treat COVID-19, hours after social media companies took down videos shared by Trump, his son and others promoting its use; Trump also retweeted several attacks on the credibility of Dr. Anthony Fauci, a leading member of the White House coronavirus task force.

Ten years ago: Syria's government launched an offensive to retake rebel-held neighborhoods in the nation's commercial hub of Aleppo. At the London Olympics, Chinese swimmer Ye Shiwen set the first world record, winning the women's 400-meter individual medley in 4:28.43. Ryan Lochte of the U.S. won the men's 400-meter individual medley in 4:05.18.

Five years ago: The Senate voted 51-49 to reject Majority Leader Mitch McConnell's last-ditch effort to dismantle President Barack Obama's health care overhaul with a trimmed-down bill; John McCain, who was about to begin treatments for a brain tumor, joined two other GOP senators in voting against the repeal effort. President Donald Trump announced he was appointing Homeland Security Secretary John Kelly to be his chief of staff. Defrocked priest Paul Shanley, who was at the center of Boston's Roman Catholic clergy sex abuse scandal, was released from prison at the age of 86.

One year ago: The Senate voted to begin work on a nearly $1 trillion national infrastructure plan after the White House and a bipartisan group of senators agreed on major provisions of the package, a key part of President Joe Biden's agenda. New guidance from the federal government calling for even vaccinated people to wear masks indoors in parts of the country set off a cascade of mask rules across the nation as cities, states, schools and businesses raced to restore mandates and others pushed back against the guidelines. The Texas blues rock trio ZZ Top announced that long-bearded bassist Dusty Hill had died at age 72.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Darryl Hickman is 91. Musical conductor Riccardo Muti is 81. Former Senator and NBA Hall of Famer Bill Bradley is 79. "Garfield" creator Jim Davis is 77. Singer Jonathan Edwards is 76. Actor Linda Kelsey is 76. TV producer Dick Ebersol is 75. Actor Sally Struthers is 75. Rock musician Simon Kirke (Bad Company) is 73. Rock musician Steve Morse (Deep Purple) is 68. Former CBS anchorman Scott Pelley is 65. Alt-country-rock musician Marc Perlman is 61. Actor Michael Hayden is 59. Actor Lori Loughlin is 58. TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On July 29, 1981, Britain's Prince Charles married Lady Diana Spencer in a glittering ceremony at St. Paul's Cathedral in London. (The couple divorced in 1996.)

ON THIS DATE:

In 1890, artist Vincent van Gogh, 37, died of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound in Auvers-sur-Oise, France.

In 1914, transcontinental telephone service in the U.S. became operational with the first test conversation between New York and San Francisco.

In 1921, Adolf Hitler became the leader ("fuehrer") of the National Socialist German Workers Party.

In 1957, the International Atomic Energy Agency was established. Jack Paar made his debut as host of NBC's "Tonight Show."

In 1958, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the National Aeronautics and Space Act, creating NASA.

In 1967, an accidental rocket launch on the deck of the supercarrier USS Forrestal in the Gulf of Tonkin resulted in a fire and explosions that killed 134 servicemen. (Among the survivors was future Arizona senator John McCain, a U.S. Navy lieutenant commander who narrowly escaped with his life.)

In 1980, a state funeral was held in Cairo, Egypt, for the deposed Shah of Iran, who had died two days earlier at age 60.

In 1986, a federal jury in New York found that the National Football League had committed an antitrust violation against the rival United States Football League. But in a hollow victory for the U-S-F-L, the jury ordered the N-F-L to pay token damages of only three dollars.

In 1994, abortion opponent Paul Hill shot and killed Dr. John Bayard Britton and Britton's escort, James H. Barrett, outside the Ladies Center clinic in Pensacola, Florida. (Hill was executed in Sept. 2003.)

In 1999, a former day trader, apparently upset over stock losses, opened fire in two Atlanta brokerage offices, killing nine people and wounding 13 before shooting himself to death; authorities said Mark O. Barton had also killed his wife and two children.

In 2016, former suburban Chicago police officer Drew Peterson was given an additional 40 years in prison for trying to hire someone to kill the prosecutor who put him behind bars for killing his third wife.

Ten years ago: Standing on Israeli soil, Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney declared Jerusalem to be the capital of the Jewish state and said the United States had "a solemn duty and a moral imperative" to block Iran from achieving nuclear weapons capability. At the London Olympics, Dana Vollmer of the United States set a world record to win the 100-meter butterfly in 55.98 seconds. Yannick Agnel rallied the French to the gold medal in the 4x100-meter freestyle relay in 3 minutes, 9.93 seconds, pulling ahead of American star Ryan Lochte on the final lap.

Five years ago: U.S. and South Korean forces conducted joint live-fire exercises in response to North Korea's second launch of an intercontinental ballistic missile; experts said the North Korean launch showed that a large portion of the United States was now within range of North Korea's arsenal.

One year ago: With teammate Simone Biles watching from the stands, American Sunisa Lee won the gold medal in women's all-around gymnastics at the Tokyo Games; she was the fifth straight American woman to claim the Olympic title in the event. (Biles withdrew from the event, which she was favored to win, to focus on her mental well-being.) President Joe Biden announced sweeping new pandemic requirements aimed at boosting vaccination rates for millions of federal workers and contractors. Former Sen. Carl Levin, a Democrat who was a powerful voice for the military during his career as Michigan's longest-serving U.S. senator, died at 87. The Detroit Pistons selected Oklahoma State's Cade Cunningham with the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft.

Today's Birthdays: Former Sen. Nancy Kassebaum-Baker is 90. Actor Robert Fuller is 89. Former Sen. Elizabeth H. Dole is 86. Actor David Warner is 81. Actor Roz Kelly is 80. Rock musician Neal Doughty (REO Speedwagon) is 76. Marilyn Tucker Quayle, wife of former Vice President Dan Quayle, is 73. Actor Mike Starr is 72. Documentary maker Ken Burns is 69. Style guru Tim Gunn is 69. Rock singer-musician Geddy Lee (Rush) is 69. Rock singer Patti Scialfa (Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band) is 69. Actor Kevin Chapman is 60. Actor Alexandra Paul is 59. Actor/comedian Dean Haglund is 57. Country singer Martina McBride is 56. Rock musician Chris Gorman is 55. Actor Rodney Allen Rippy is 54. Actor Tim Omundson is 53. Actor Ato Essandoh is 50.

VMI ready for Forrester to begin as executive director

BY BOB DEMAREE

Visit Madison Inc. on Monday held its last meeting before new Executive Director Andrew Forrester assumes those duties next week after he finishes up his time as director of intergovernmental affairs for Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb.

VMI President Lucy Dattilo said Forrester, hired at last month's VMI board meeting, will officially be on the job Tuesday, Aug. 2, working remotely the first week then being in the office on Monday, Aug. 8.

"We're really looking forward to him being here and providing a lot good leadership and guidance for VMI," said Dattilo.

The board approved adding Forrester to all VMI accounts, which Dattilo said needs to recorded in the board's minutes to meet the requirements for official documentation for the bank.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

• Executive Marketing Director Sarah Prasil reported that the Jefferson County Tourism Alliance held its first quarterly meeting last Wednesday after work of consultants Dan Galvin and Michael Fortunato had been completed.

"We had great attendance," she said, noting there were 18 attendees, including Forrester who joined by phone.

"Even though the consultants job had ended, we wanted to make sure it didn't just die off," said Dattilo. "Even the consultants showed up even though they aren't being paid any more but they care about seeing it through." She also noted that three Jefferson Board of Tourism members participated.

"The Alliance has the potential to promote that one tourism effort where our money, where our funding, where our energy goes to all come together to get things done," said Dattilo.

• Erin Kindle, coordinator for the Madison Ribberfest BBQ and Blues Festival, provided an update on that event scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 19-20. The inaugural Porkers Poker Pub Crawl is set for this Saturday as a kickoff event. As part of the 20th anniversary celebration, Kindle said the event will introduce its own beer to be called Ribberfestbier and brewed by a local brewery.

Kindle is also coordinator for the Nights Before Christmas Candlelight Tour of Homes, held annually during the last weekend of November and first weekend of December, and she said this year's event will be the 40th annual and they are in the process of finalizing details on which six homes will participate in the tour this year.

SINGER

Clark song growing up in the '90s, but I've since learned was originally a Linda Ronstadt song. It's another good one for vocal range, it takes lots of control to sing.

"I made it through to the final round and I sang At Last by Etta James. The winner in the finals was a super talented woman out of Louisville who trains at the School of Rock. She has the total package, vocal talent, showmanship, charisma. It was a real pleasure competing with her and the other contestants.

"All in all it was an amazing experience, and it felt so good to be singing again. I made some friends, and it kind of rekindled my love of performing. I can honestly say right now, if anybody were to ask me to sing, with a band or just as a guest vocalist, you can count me in.

"And it was so great having a professional band behind me. Joe Perkinson and the rest of the guys were just so encouraging and amazing to work with. I feel like I'm ready to do it again on a regular basis. I could get my old mojo back with just a little more practice. Who needs a vocalist?!"

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

I haven't talked about the Friday Live Lunches at Lytle Park in a long time, but the Madison Music Movement has been quietly putting on the most amazing free lunch concerts there for a couple of years now. A lot of the bands playing live lunch are touring acts coming to Madison to play Friday night at one of the larger venues, and they just slip them into Lytle Park for an early warm up show.

This Friday is the incomparable Robert Reynolds and Darryl Hewitt. If you can find the time to get down there any Friday, you won't be disappointed. Another fun "lunch" thing happening on Saturday is the Ribberfest Porkers Poker Pub Crawl, running from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. You can sign up and check-in at the VisitMadison Inc. offices, and then enjoy a fun pub crawl between five downtown venues. Full details at VisitMadison.org.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Jimmy Shane speeds into this weekend's H1 Unlimited race in the Tri-Cities, Washington, with a 251-point lead in the National High Points Standings, but it won't be Corey Peabody Shane is trying to fend off, but his old rival J. Michael Kelly.

Peabody's spectacular flip on July 3 aboard the U-9 Lynx Healthcare during the Final Heat of the Indiana Governor's Cup here in Madison damaged that boat beyond timely repair.

As a result, Strong Racing Team has decided to dock the boat and sideline Peabody for the rest of the season.

But that doesn't mean the team isn't still hoping for a title.

Strong Racing has opted to shift its "U-9" number to the team's second boat, the "U-8" entry driven by defending driver's national champion Kelly.

While Kelly has little chance to catch Shane in the driver's standings — he trails by 1,242 points with just three races left in the season — he has plenty of time to win the first boat title of his career.

But catching Shane won't be easy. Other than a pre-race penalty before the final of the APBA Gold Cup in Guntersville, Alabama, Shane and the U-1 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison have been unbeatable.

That penalty — for dropping below 80 mph before the start of a race — and the same penalty in a preliminary heat at Madison are the only times Shane has been beaten this season.

In both cases, it was Peabody who took advantage of the penalty to claim the win, but he now will be on the sidelines cheering on Kelly, whose boat will run as the U-9 Lynx Healthcare for the remainder of the season.

Shane and Kelly highlight what will be the smallest field to ever compete in an H1 Unlimited race at the Tri-Cities. Race fans at the Columbia River course are accustomed to watching at least 10 boats on the water, but this year, only six boats will make up the field.

That number of boats could have been even fewer. Dave Villock's U-40 Miss Beacon Plumbing was forced to withdraw from the Madison race after he said the boat hit a log in the Ohio River, breaking the propeller and tearing up the underside of the boat. However, the team has spent the last three weeks laboring to make repairs in time to compete this weekend.

Shane's teammate, Jeff Bernard, comes into the race third in the points standings after two strong races in the U-91 Goodman Real Estate/Miss Madison. Bernard finished second at both Guntersville and Madison.

The boat will be known as the U-11 Miss Joker's Casino for the Columbia Cup after running as the U-11 Miss Colleen at the first two races.

Jimmy King and the U-3 Miss Ace Hardware return the circuit after skipping the Madison race and is seventh in the points standings.

The HAPO Columbia Cup will be contested with four sets of preliminary heats, beginning on Saturday with Heat 1A at 4:55 p.m. EDT and on Sunday with Heat 3A at 1:40 p.m.

The Final Heat is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. EDT on Sunday.

Mark Campbell

The U-8 Miss Tri-Cities, pictured being driven by J. Michael Kelly this year at Madison, will be renumbered as the U-9 Lynx Healthcare for this weekend's race at Tri-Cities, Washington, as well as the remainder of the 2022 season. A blowover accident at Madison on July 3 damaged the U-9 beyond repair during the current season but driver Corey Peabody escaped injury. The move allows Strong Racing a better position in the National High Points race but leaves Peabody without a ride.

Crew members survey damage to the U-9 Lynx Healthcare after a July 3 blowover in Madison. Driver Corey Peabody escaped injury but the boat has been withdrawn from H1 Unlimited competition because making repairs will extend beyond the 2022 season. The boat number and sponsorship have been moved over to Strong Racing's other boat and driver J. Michael Kelly.

Brown: Bengals must pay star QB Burrow to keep him in Cincy

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — The Bengals are already structuring finances so they can pay Joe Burrow enough money to stay in Cincinnati when the star quarterback becomes eligible to negotiate a new contract after this season, team owner Mike Brown said Monday.

Burrow likely will command a long-term deal paying him somewhere in the $40 million to $50 million range per season, based on the deals of other top NFL quarterbacks.

The latest to cash in was Kyler Murray, who last week signed a five-year, $230 million deal with the Cardinals, working out to about $46.1 million per season.

Cincinnati receiver Tee Higgins, drafted in same 2020 class as Burrow, also will be eligible to negotiate after this season, reigning Offensive Rookie of the Year Ja'Marr Chase the year after that. Both also will require big contracts.

"Right now our obvious, most important issue will be our quarterback," the 86-year-old Brown said a day before the Bengals open training camp in Cincinnati. "It's not quite ready or ripe yet, but it's right down the track and we see the train coming."

The odd man out here may be safety Jessie Bates III, who has been frustrated by failed efforts to reach a long-term deal with the Bengals. A popular team leader, Bates stayed away from organized team events in the spring and will play this season with a franchise tag, meaning he can negotiate with any team after the season. No one knows when he might show up for training camp.

"We were two years trying to extend him, and we weren't able to get there," Brown said. "I regret that we didn't. But we will have another chance at the end of the season. Maybe it will happen then.

"Keep in mind we have a lot going on," Brown continued. "We're trying to get ready for our cap and as we go down the line and we're going to need room for our quarterback and our receivers."

Burrow's value to the team on the field and as the face of the franchise can't be overstated. He led the Bengals to their first Super Bowl appearance in 33 years, losing to the Los Angeles Rams 23-20. The excitement has carried over. Season tickets are already sold out for the 2022 season.

"We couldn't be happier with Joe Burrow," Brown said. "He's everything you would wish for, especially for a quarterback in Cincinnati. And our whole focus is going on keeping him here."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Pablo López allowed two hits and tied his career high with 11 strikeouts over seven dominant innings and the Miami Marlins edged the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 Tuesday night.

Joey Wendle hit a two-run single off Hunter Greene as Miami for the third time in nine games.

A day after Cincinnati piled up 11 runs in a romp, López turned in a stopper-like performance for the Marlins. He overcame Mike Moustakas's solo homer to finish with a flourish, retiring his final nine batters and striking out the side in the sixth. He didn't walk anybody while retiring 21 of his last 22 Cincinnati batters.

López (7-5), the National League April Pitcher of the Month after going 3-0, allowed a single to the first batter he faced, Jonathan India, before retiring the next 12. Moustakas snapped that run, leading off the fifth with his sixth homer of the season.

Anthony Bass kept the streak alive with a perfect eighth. Tanner Scott closed it out with a 1-2-3 ninth for his 13th save.

Greene almost matched López out-for-out, allowing three hits through the first four scoreless innings before the Marlins broke through in the fifth when Jesús Sánchez singled with one out and went to third on Luke Williams' single. Williams stole second while Jacob Stallings was striking out, but Wendle drove in both runners with a single to right — the first of his three straight hits.

The Marlins collected nine hits and two runs in 6 1/3 innings against Greene (3-12), who struck out six and walked one. The rookie right-hander is 0-5 over his last eight starts since his last win on June 6 against Arizona.

Reds 11, Marlins 2 (Monday) — Jonathan India hit his first career grand slam and Brandon Drury connected for a three-run shot, helping the Cincinnati Reds pound the banged-up Miami Marlins 11-2 on Monday night.

India and Donovan Solano each had three hits as last-place Cincinnati improved to 9-4 in its last 13 games. Since starting the season 3-22, the Reds have gone 34-36.

India returned to the lineup as the designated hitter after he was scratched ahead of Sunday's 6-3 victory over St. Louis because of a bruised left thigh. He got hurt on a headfirst slide on Saturday.

Miami had 15 players on its injured list, hurting its chances for staying in the NL wild-card race. The Marlins dropped to 3-12 against the Reds since 2019.

Judge: Transgender girl can rejoin school's softball team

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — A federal judge has ordered Indianapolis Public Schools to allow a 10-year-old transgender girl to rejoin her school's all-girls softball team while a lawsuit continues against a state law that bans transgender females from competing in girls school sports.

U.S. District Judge Jane Magnus-Stinson in Indianapolis issued a preliminary injunction Tuesday on behalf of the girl, finding that she "has established that she has a strong likelihood of succeeding on the merits" of her claim.

"She has also established that she would suffer irreparable harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy," Magnus-Stinson wrote in her order of the girl, who will be a fifth-grader when classes resume in August.

Indianapolis Public School had told the girl's mother earlier this year that her daughter would no longer be able to play on the girls' softball team because of the new law, the judge added.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana filed the lawsuit on behalf of the girl in hopes of blocking the law.

The suit was filed in May, minutes after Republican state lawmakers voted to override Gov. Eric Holcomb's veto of the legislation, and alleges that preventing the girl from rejoining her team because she is transgender is violation of Title IX and the U.S. Constitution. That lawsuit continues against the law, which took effect on July 1 and which opponents have argued is a bigoted response to a problem that doesn't exist.

Republican sponsors of the bill maintain it is needed to protect the integrity of female sports and opportunities for girls to gain college athletic scholarships but have pointed to no instances in Indiana of girls being outperformed by transgender athletes.

ACLU of Indiana's legal director, Ken Falk, said Tuesday in a statement that the group is pleased that the judge decided that the girl should "be allowed to play on her school's softball team."

"When misinformation about biology and gender is used to bar transgender girls from school sports it amounts to the same form of sex discrimination that has long been prohibited under Title IX, a law that protects all students — including trans people — on the basis of sex," Falk said.

Magnus-Stinson wrote in her order that Indianapolis Public Schools has taken "no position regarding whether the Court should issue a preliminary injunction," but that the state has intervened and opposes the request for the preliminary injunction.

COURIERAREA SPORTS SHORTS

• The Hanover Parks Department and Jefferson County Soccer Association is teaming up to offer soccer at Hanover Park this fall for a second year in a row.

Sign-ups for the JCSA-Hanover Fall League are currently underway. JCSA officials will be on-site at Hanover Park at 200 Spruce Lane from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Saturday, July 30. Cost is $55 and all practices and games take place at Hanover Park. In 2021 — the first year of this partnership — there were three divisions (U6, U8, U10) with three teams in each.

The goal in 2022 is to increase participation numbers through lower roster sizes. This will allow each participant the opportunity to maximize practice and playing time and improve their foot-to-ball skills. Coaches are also needed.

Applications are also available at the Hanover Park Office located in the Community Center at Hanover Park.

For more information, call Brian Sachleben with JCSA at 502-310-8484 and/or Scott Davidson with the Hanover Parks personnel, said he's got an eye on those looming contract issues, but would rather concentrate on the more immediate goal of getting back to the Super Bowl.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Bengals home field is still called Paul Brown Stadium, but that's likely to change soon.

Brown said it's inevitable that the naming rights to the 22-year-old venue that carries the name of his father and team founder will be sold. He wasn't able to provide any details Monday but said an announcement is coming.

"We are a small-market team," he said, noting that most NFL teams have sold naming rights. "We need the revenue streams that we can obtain. We have to do some things just to keep up."

REDS

Cincinnati rookie Nick Lodolo (3-3) struck out a career-high nine over six innings. The left-hander allowed two unearned runs and five hits.

The Marlins loaded the bases with none out in the third and failed to score. Jesús Aguilar struck out swinging before Avisaíl García lined to first baseman Joey Votto, who caught Miguel Rojas off second to complete an inning-ending double play.

Drury, who could be on the move ahead of the Aug. 2 trade deadline, hit his 19th homer in the fourth — a two-out drive to left against Trevor Rogers that made it 6-2.

India went deep in the fifth. It was India's sixth homer this season. A triple shy of the cycle, he lined out to left in his final at-bat in the seventh.

"Of course I thought about a cycle that whole at-bat," India said. "I had one in high school."

Audacious text message leads to blunt response

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My wife of over 25 years is foreign-born.

She travels to her home country for an extended period almost every year. I'll join her for a few weeks, and she'll stay a while longer after I return home.

Recently when she returned home, she told me that after I had left, she was introduced to a male acquaintance of her family's.

Afterward this man tracked her down and sent her a text message, which she let me read. It was quite lengthy and frankly, incredibly audacious. He told her how attractive she is, how he wanted to spend time with her, and suggested how to discreetly contact him to arrange a rendezvous.

Her response to him was overly polite: "I'm flattered, but I'm busy. Perhaps some other time."

A few weeks later, I sent him a terse message (I'm fluent in his language) to back off.

He did not answer my message; instead he forwarded it to my wife, who got angry and said that I embarrassed her and violated her privacy.

I told her that while I may have ruined her other man fantasy, someone had to put him in his place, and I was proud to do it.

Did I do the right thing, or was I being meddlesome?

— Just Wondering

Dear Wondering: In its ambiguity, "Perhaps some other time" can be read as something of an invitation.

You were trying to protect your marriage by being direct, but your wife is the one who should have drawn a firm boundary around your marriage.

You could have asked her to make a more definitive statement, rather than doing it yourself.

At this point, without discussing his behavior or hers, you should talk to her sincerely about how this has made you feel: "This text exchange made me very sad and angry. I'm worried about our relationship, and I'm trying to protect it."

Mom wants smooth waters for ex-con son

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My family and I (husband and two teens) live with my very elderly parents. I purchased the house from the trust after my parents proposed the idea.

This benefits my parents — they can stay in the house and receive our help. My teens benefit from living with them. This is a win-win.

I have a third child in his 30s, who is not living with us.

My son has a long history of incarcerations and has two felonies for theft and drug offenses.

He has been out of prison for over a year. He lives with friends and at times with his father (my ex). He's not exactly the model citizen, but is keeping out of trouble.

He has his mail sent to our house.

Whenever he stops over to get it, my mother becomes really nervous, anxious, and fearful. She won't hug him, make eye contact or converse.

She has not forgiven him for stealing grandpa's credit card and cash from them when he was a teen.

She has basically disowned him for his failures, and I'm guessing she's embarrassed by him, too.

They were really close when he was a child.

As far as I'm concerned, he's done his time, he is family, and he shouldn't be disowned.

Grandma recently told him (when I was in the other room) that he can't stop at the house anymore.

I like to see him occasionally and am not afraid of him stealing. He is not dangerous.

Your advice?

— Forgiving Mom

Dear Mom: Has your son sincerely acknowledged and apologized for his actions? Asked for forgiveness? Recognized how he violated his grandparents' trust? Attempted to repay them?

If not, he should.

Be gentle with your mother. Ask her to describe her feelings about this, and patiently reassure her. Ask her, "What could he do to make you feel more comfortable?"

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — Promise only what you can safely deliver. Stick to a practical budgetary plan to keep the household running. Do not spend money frivolously or recklessly just to impress a partner or have something to talk about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — Work may play second fiddle to your exciting social agenda. A change of plan or an unexpected gift might brighten the day. Your current love interest or somebody new could make you the center of attention.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Focus on facts before you attempt to fulfill your fantasies. You may receive unexpected responses to your invitations or ideas. You might not be able to make sound decisions unless you have more consistent feedback.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Almost every obstacle has a workaround. Do not let generalized anxiety or overthinking prevent you from trying your best. Your attention may shift toward the material plane and ways to acquire more toys and more luxe.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — A fresh set of original concepts can capture your attention, and you may have an opportunity to try a new direction. Look for guidance from trusted sources during the next several days to help you find ways to grow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Be mindful so you don't ignore boundaries or invite misunderstandings. Soak up inspiration that will help you be more creative but do not be surprised if you hit a creative block. A new approach helps you break up old routines.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Opportunities to try something new abound if you are sharp enough to notice. Avoid becoming involved in someone's emotional drama. Concentrate on achieving your goals by sticking to a solid and careful plan.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Understand the difference between what you want and what you need, and you should be able to at least find what you need. Keep your eyes and ears open. Your partner may expect to receive more of your attention than usual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — You may find yourself feeling more interested in broadening your horizons. Get out that bucket list and plan some travel, or begin a new course of study, stream a documentary, or just pick up a good book.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — You may have all you can handle on your plate already. Avoid people with emotional issues or conflicting agendas now. Someone might surprise you by defending your side of a dispute or championing a cause on your behalf.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Build your own comfort zone. Your experience of people and events is always determined by your perception. If you feel unworthy, work on healing old wounds and evolving to a new level of deservingness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — Keep an open mind and a closed mouth. The views and opinions of other people might not match yours but could widen your perspective. If you attempt to explain your ideas, a potential misunderstanding could occur.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — You may prefer to start the weekend early, but the daily grind must be completed first. Attend to your tasks like a super trooper so you will have time for guilt-free fun without any obligations hanging over your head.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — You can be kind but clear. Insist that friends and family follow through on their promises and honor their agreements. You may feel on edge or in too much of a hurry if much anticipation has built up around special outings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Fish up the answer. Dig around, ask questions and you will find someone with the knowledge to help you resolve a situation. Tie up loose ends by picking up the phone and diligently making follow-up calls.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Your judgment when handling financial matters may be better than usual and you may also tap into meaningful advice from mentors. Some of your plans for a social event could be unexpectedly and radically altered by an abrupt change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — You're unlikely to go wrong if you are motivated by a moral imperative. Negotiations can be successful if you make sure others benefit as much as you do from a transaction. Take time to learn more about your competitors or potential clients.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — It's time to pay it forward, or to give back. Look around you to identify community needs and commit to even a very small action. Ask yourself how you can inspire others to be more tolerant, cooperative and generous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — You may have an urge that seems to demand immediate attention. If you think about it, you will understand the benefit of going along with the flow. People may be won over by your reasonable manner if you let it shine through.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Let good enough be good enough — trying to attain perfection only causes frustration and aggravation. Be more tolerant about slip ups and learn from them. Focus on using smart business tactics to accomplish your goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Put it into gear and roll. This could be a good weekend to put your plans into motion or make key decisions about your future. Have faith that loved ones and long-time friends have your best interests at heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Set the bar high, but not so high that no one can reach it. Intention is a beacon that attracts whatever it sends out. Send out abundant gratitude and clear, detailed visions to attract your desires into your world.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Step up and find ways to actively work toward and claim your destiny. Consider implementing innovative strategies to make your future brighter. A trusted friend or mentor can be an excellent sounding board.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — Know that everyone is doing their best and don't take things personally. Learning from constructive criticism can save you time and energy. Have more confidence in your abilities and more faith in your loved ones.

NASCAR slams McDowell, team for illegally modified part

Sean Gardner

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — NASCAR levied another round of massive penalties on Tuesday, this time against Michael McDowell and Front Row Motorsports, for illegal modifications discovered after McDowell's sixth-place finish at Pocono Raceway.

NASCAR fined crew chief Blake Harris $100,000 and suspended him for four races. McDowell was docked 100 driver points and Front Row docked 100 owner points.

If the No. 34 team wins one of the five remaining regular-season races to qualify for the playoffs, McDowell will be docked 10 playoff points.

The L2-level penalty was issued for an illegal modification of a single source supplied part — which is strictly prohibited on NASCAR's new Next Gen car.

"To make sure that all of those things stay above board, there's going to have to be a culture shift from the way that the teams and NASCAR, for that matter, have done business," NASCAR Senior Vice President of Competition Scott Miller said in January when announcing the Next Gen penalty structure.

"This deterrence model has more meat in it, more meaningful penalties, but I think we all thought that it was time for this with the introduction of the new car."

The penalties on Front Row come after NASCAR disqualified Pocono winner Denny Hamlin and runner-up Kyle Busch when their Toyotas failed post-race inspection at Pocono. Chase Elliott finished third and didn't lead a lap but was given the win following the DQs.

NASCAR found illegal tape on the front fascia of the Joe Gibbs Racing cars in its post-race inspection.

The disqualifications moved McDowell up to sixth in the final finishing order at Pocono. Both his Ford and the Chevrolet driven by Ricky Stenhouse Jr. of JTG Daugherty Chevrolet had been randomly selected for further inspection at NASCAR's Research and Development Center in Concord.

McDowell was ranked 20th in the standings with a career-best eight top-10 finishes prior to the penalty.

NFL teams open camp with biggest question still unanswered

BY ROB MAADDI
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

Training camps opened across the NFL and the biggest offseason question remains unanswered.

The Cleveland Browns still don't know how many games they'll be without Deshaun Watson, who is still waiting for retired judge Sue L. Robinson to issue a ruling following his disciplinary hearing that concluded nearly four weeks ago.

The league and the NFL Players' Association requested a decision by the start of training camp, according to a person familiar with the process who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the discussions are private. Robinson, who was jointly appointed by the league and the union, had no obligation to meet that deadline. Representatives are hopeful a decision comes this week.

Watson was accused of sexual misconduct by 24 women and has settled 20 of the civil lawsuits. Two separate Texas grand juries declined to indict Watson on criminal complaints stemming from the allegations.

The Browns, along with 27 other teams, welcomed their veterans on Tuesday as each of the 32 teams have now kicked off camp. Watson reported to his first camp with Cleveland last week along with veteran backup Jacoby Brissett, the team's presumed starter if there is a suspension. The Browns also signed Josh Rosen last week as more quarterback insurance.

Watson should be on the field for the team's first full-squad practice Wednesday. There was an amusing moment on Monday when the three-time Pro Bowl quarterback was seen walking in full uniform across the street in front of the Browns' training facility to take part in a photo shoot.

Other top questions around the NFL that still need to be addressed in training camp:

WHERE'S JIMMY G GOING?

The San Francisco 49ers made it clear Trey Lance will be the starting quarterback and they're moving on from Jimmy Garoppolo, who led them to a Super Bowl appearance following the 2019 season and nearly another one last season. The Niners have to trade or release Garoppolo before Week 1 to avoid having his $24.2 million base salary become fully guaranteed. Garoppolo would've been moved already if it weren't for his offseason shoulder surgery.

"This is Trey's team. That's nothing against Jimmy," 49ers coach Mike Shanahan said. "We made that decision a year ago and we're not going to mess around with that anymore. ... Jimmy understands that fully. He's a big guy and it's nothing against him. It's a business decision."

BAKER OR SAM?

The Carolina Panthers acquired Baker Mayfield from the Browns earlier this month and plan to let him compete with Sam Darnold for the starting quarterback job. Mayfield, the No. 1 overall pick in 2018, has been more successful than Darnold, who was the third pick by the Jets in the same draft.

"Anytime you put timelines on things, you end up rushing to make bad decisions," Rhule said. "To me this is about being in the moment but not making rash judgements. Guys are going to have good days and bad days. When we know, we know."

WHEN DOES LAMAR GET PAID?

The Baltimore Ravens still haven't locked Lamar Jackson into a long-term contract extension but the two sides have been talking. Jackson, the 2019 NFL MVP, saw his value increase after the Cardinals gave Kyler Murray a deal worth up to $230.5 million with about $105 million guaranteed at signing and $160 million guaranteed for injury. Jackson doesn't have an agent, which could impact negotiations. It wasn't a factor for his rookie deal because the collective bargaining agreement predetermines the money in each draft slot. This contract is far more lucrative.

ARE THEY HEALTHY?

Saints quarterback Jameis Winston, Buccaneers wide receiver Chris Godwin, Ravens running back J.K. Dobbins are among more than 50 players returning from ACL injuries. Panthers running back Christian McCaffrey played only seven games last season because of hamstring and ankle injuries. Titans star running back Derrick Henry missed nine games with a foot injury before playing in the team's playoff loss to the Bengals. Cowboys receiver Michael Gallup, Ravens running back Gus Edwards, Titans receiver Robert Woods, Packers tight end Robert Tonyan are also coming back from ACL surgery. Saints star wideout Michael Thomas missed 2021 because of a severe ankle injury, and Vikings receiver Adam Thielen had ankle surgery in December.
